A Few Words from Patricia Pendry, ISAZ President

To the ISAZ community,

As you may suspect, it has been an extremely busy month for all of us at ISAZ. First and foremost, together with Shelly Volsche and Nikki Bennett, our fabulous conference hosts, we have been working hard to accommodate a smooth transition to a virtual ISAZ 2022. Fortunately, we have built up excellent institutional knowledge and developed great relationships with the knowledgeable team who will be providing the essential technical expertise necessary to deliver a fabulous conference. You will also be happy to know that our impressive keynote speakers are still committed to share their research – you can read more about what inspires them about our field on the ISAZ Student Blog. In addition, we are excited to share that the pivot to a virtual format has led us to receive many more abstract submissions from researchers around the world. We all look forward to seeing you as we begin to count down the days until the conference!

I am also extremely happy to share with you that we have formally launched a call for our first Diversity Equity and Inclusion Award. Our development committee, awards committee, and many others at ISAZ are excited to announce this initiative to enhance the attendance and participation of culturally diverse and underrepresented groups at our conferences. We are especially grateful to Pet Partners and Mars Waltham, who are generously sponsoring the first round of the ISAZ 2022 DEI awards. We have already received several applications and look forward to recognizing our recipients at the next conference. We recognize that this is merely a first step in facilitating greater diversity in our membership and HAI community. If you have creative ideas that contribute to this important cause, we would love to hear from you!

We are actively engaged in redesigning our website, a process that has been years in the making. If all goes according to plan, our new website will be revealed during ISAZ 2022. We have also made excellent progress toward re-envisioning the ISAZ membership renewal process, which we hope to have in place in the Fall of this year. Last but not least, we are always looking to increase engagement of our student members and recognizing exceptional accomplishments through our awards committee.

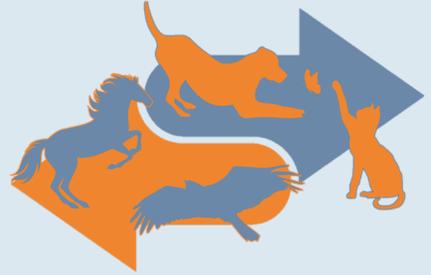

As always, I encourage you to reach out to our board and to me, as we welcome your ideas and contributions. I look forward to sharing our ongoing accomplishments, and I wish you a great spring and summer!

Patricia Pendry

ISAZ 2022 Conference News

Hello again from the Conference Hosts and Planning Committee!

It has been a whirlwind since the last newsletter, and we have plenty of news to share regarding ISAZ 2022 in July.

First, the “bad” news.

After careful consideration, and in conjunction with the ISAZ President and Board of Directors, we made the incredibly difficult decision to move our 2022 conference to a completely online format. The dates of the conference remain the same (July 7-9, 2022), so if you already blocked out the dates, you are set!

We came to this decision based upon the following factors:

- Feedback from our recent attendance survey showed less than 50% of respondents planned to attend the conference in person.
- Despite rising vaccine rates and decreasing infection rates in the United States, costs of travel and continued concerns over the pandemic are clearly impacting attendance plans.

We appreciate that this is disappointing news for some, but we were prepared for this possibility. We have already begun working with Oxford Abstracts and Creature Conferences (the same services as 2021) to provide an engaging conference experience. We are also taking feedback from last year’s conference to heart and are making every effort to further simplify the process and interactivity of attendance.

Now, the “good” news!

We want to assure all ISAZ members, attendees, and partner organizations that we still have an excellent conference planned, with plenty of opportunities to interact in real time. We are talking unstructured Zoom networking opportunities throughout the day, livestream chat, and a fun conference scavenger hunt.

Oh, and did we mention the swag?

One thing we all miss about in-person conferences is the SWAG! This year, we are offering t-shirts \(long-sleeve and short sleeve\) and coffee

mugs adorned with the conference logo.

All proceeds from the purchase of your swag go directly to ISAZ to fund future scholarships, conferences, and more. And the more we buy, the more support we can generate.

Plus! This year we will be doing an assortment of social media activities before and during the conference. Be sure you have your swag in time to participate and use #ISAZ2022!

We have also secured continued commitment from our amazing lineup of keynote speakers. Participating this year are:

- Alexandra Horowitz, Barnard College
Canine cognition expert and author
- Iván Sandoval-Cervantes, University of Nevada, Las Vegas
Assistant Professor of cultural anthropology
- Michelle Rodrigues, Marquette University
Assistant Professor of biological anthropology
- Suzanne Asha Stone, International Wildlife Coexistence Network
Founder of Wood River Wolf Project and Director of IWCN

Whether disseminating research findings, training practitioners and future scholars, or working within our communities, research must be shared to be useful. To this end, we are excited to offer a program rich in diversity of topics, scholars, career stages, and methodologies discussing human-animal relationships. The conference will feature livestream talks and symposia, a full OnDemand library, and poster presentations to showcase current anthrozoological work.

Join us this July for Anthrozoology in Translation: Communicating Research from and to Multiple Audiences.

Announcing ISAZ's first DEI Award!

The 2022 Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion awards were generously sponsored by Pet Partners and Mars Waltham. Recipients will receive support for their ISAZ 2022 conference registration fee and/or their ISAZ 2022 membership dues.

Applicants must meet the following criteria to be eligible for the award:

- Be a member of an underrepresented group (e.g., racial/minority identification, nationality, sexual orientation, age, socioeconomic status, disability/other special needs)
- Student, post doc, faculty, or research scientist
- Currently enrolled in an educational institution/currently employed at an institution/organization
- Must have submitted an abstract and agreed to present and/or contributed as an author on an accepted presentation

- Must be willing to complete a report on their conference attendance

Applicants must submit:

- Online application/complete biographical sketch
- Personal statement as to why they are well-suited for the ISAZ-DEI award, with emphasis on experience, background in the field of anthrozoology, employment, future career directions (1 page max.)
- ISAZ 2022 abstract submission number
